
Most legal chatbots

you the wrong
section number.

So I built one that can't.

A wrong answer isn't a worse answer.
It's a harmful one.

Ask whether you can still sue your landlord. If the limitation period is off by a year, you don't get a slightly worse answer — you lose the claim entirely.

THE DESIGN

Retrieval produces the law.

The model only phrases it.

Every answer is built from 152 curated passages across 92 Indian Acts, each carrying its section and a source you can open.

The model never writes a section number, because it never gets to invent one.

off-topic questions answered

It has to be able to say "I don't know."

That turned out to be the hardest part — and the part I could actually measure.

Several guards have to agree before it answers at all.
A tool that guesses about a deadline is worse than no tool.

What has happened?

My landlord will not return my security deposit

The deposit is your money held as security, not the landlord's income. It must come back when you hand over possession, less only what the agreement lets them deduct.

THE WHOLE ANSWER

One situation. One date.

- where to file
- every deadline, in the order they fall
- what it costs
- the letter to send first
- what happens after you file

Lookup tables and calendar arithmetic — instant, identical every time, and it works with no network.

EIGHT LANGUAGES

Hindi · Marathi · Gujarati · Tamil
Telugu · Bengali · Kannada · English

Every English metric was green while a Hindi speaker asking about a withheld deposit got nothing at all. The aggregate hid it completely.

"the best pizza in town"

returned street-vending law

It matched “Town Vending Committee”. No score threshold separates that from a real one-word match on “cheque”. The fix was to ask where the word appears, not how rare it is.

THE LAST GUARD

Asked a question it can't answer, a model will invent one.

Asked in Hindi who the current Chief Justice is, a local model replied with a list of judges out of its training data.

The corpus names nobody — deliberately. Nothing in it can keep a name current. That's now a guard, not a hope.

Free legal aid is a statutory right for most people in India.
Very few know it.
